

Jerry Wonda is a Grammy-winning music producer, composer, and musician known for his groundbreaking contributions to hip-hop, R&B, and pop music. As a co-founding member of The Fugees, his production on their iconic album The Score (1996) helped shape the sound of modern hip-hop and earned multiple Grammy Awards. Beyond The Fugees, he has collaborated with top artists like Michael Jackson, Shakira, Beyoncé, Whitney Houston, and Justin Bieber, blending global sounds with mainstream appeal. Before co-founding Platinum Sound Recording Studios in New York City in 2002, Jerry Wonda first established the Booga Basement, where he honed his craft and produced early hits. Platinum Sound has since become a hub for world-renowned artists. Wonda is also deeply committed to community work, where he partners with schools to provide music education and mentorship. His philanthropy extends to Haitian disaster relief and global artistic empowerment. With a career spanning over two decades, Jerry Wonda continues to influence music while using his platform to uplift the next generation.
